

Educating and assisting homeowners in the recovery of cash settlements for building products

This overview addresses the basics about hardboard siding settlements and claims process. If you have questions, please visit our Web site, contact your agent or call us toll free.

During the last several years more than 29 manufacturers of building products have been the subjects of settled, class-action lawsuits. Many homeowners are unaware of the details of these suits and that they qualify for cash settlements as part of them.

The documentation and claims process is complex and time consuming. Furthermore, these liability claims are not easily addressed by parties unfamiliar with the specific settlement protocols and inspection procedures.

These are settled cases and require unique knowledge of the claims process and the details of the court protocol inspections. Many claims programs require multiple, subsequent filings to ensure the maximum recovery on each qualifying property.

As your agent, ClaimSource One oversees each aspect of the claims process for you. Our innate knowledge of the claims process and the courts' unique requirements helps our customers gain reasonable settlements time and time again.

WHAT WE DO

At ClaimSource One, we know that you have better things to do with your time than worry over every detail of a building product claim. From paying the initial claims submission fee on your behalf to reviewing settlement offers and asking for subsequent inspections when needed, we work hard to ensure that the claims process is worry-free and risk-free for you.

OUR CLAIM SERVICE INCLUDES:

- Product identification and evaluation
- Matching damaged products to the correct settlement program
- Collection of all documents and product samples
- Management, scheduling and audits of third-party, on-site inspections
- Review and evaluation of settlement offers for optimum results
- Collection and disbursement of funds
- Maintenance of claim database for subsequent filings

We know that we succeed or fail as a team. In fact, we pay the initial claims submission fees on your behalf, investing in our joint success without any out-of-pocket cost on your part.

We are compensated only when you are – by taking a reasonable commission when a settlement is reached. This shared success model is the foundation of our trusting client relationships. Let us help you start the claim process today!
